Fayron Epps PhD, RN, FGSA, FAAN

Associate Professor
Director of Community & Research Engagement
Office of Diversity, Equity & Inclusion
Nell Hodgson Woodruff School of Nursing
Emory University

Epps has dedicated her career as a nurse leader to reducing health disparities for underserved populations through innovative and culturally relevant programs.

Epps created a culturally appropriate caregiver education and training program called, "Caregiving While Black" that looks to address the cultural reality of caring for someone living with dementia as a Black person in America. Join us to learn about some of the tools African American caregivers need to navigate care for family members or friends living with dementia.

Wednesday, February 15
12:00 - 1:00 p.m. EST
